“ Don Haggard taught me how to change the brakes and rotors on my truck. He had air tools in his garage and insisted I save my money and learn. I learned a lot more than how to change my brakes. As a new home owner, he taught me to properly install a front door at my house. Don always was willing to stop by and help. While working at Newberg Hospital, there was a period when He and Steve Winchucker would stop by for breakfast. I would sit and listen to them tell stories and give each other grief. It was the material comedy sitcoms are written with. It was great! I also learned watching those two old guys banter. My favorite though, Donnie's big loving family. I was adopted into it by Tracie. Sam and Natalie usually hosted holidays and game days. The whole family was there. Playing games, watching games, having fun, grandparents to grandkids running around. I always felt so welcome around Donnie's family. It was was a family away from my family. What a legacy he had. I really admired Don. He taught me a lot more than he would've known.
RIP Donnie III
