“ John was a good friend to me and I will always remember him. He was a special guy with a good heart and a lot of life in him. He left us way too soon! R.I.P. Big John

“ So many stories I don't know where to begin. I'll begin in the beginning. I had an artist friend, Katherine who I dropped off for Artwalk every month. One time I came back as these two young gentlemen(brothers) were talking to her and admiring her work. The both had these great smiles. Every month it was the same thing. If I missed them Katherine would say "The Big Guy was here. When Katherine died I was afraid it would be a shock for him. I watched for him to come. As he walked in the door I ran down to tell him. He said "I know. Didn't you get my note?" He had gone to visit her on her deathbed but we didn't know his name. That's the kind of guy he was. It was a few months later when I ran into him and he gave me his name and number. He told me he spent so much time with her because he knew she didn't have long and he wanted to learn as much as he could from her. He asked me to go with him to the studio tours. When he held open his car door for me, he said "Don't worry. As long as you're with me nothing is going to happen to you." Midway on the tour he had to stop by his house to check on his dog. Nice. A man with a dog shows he cares. As he drove down from his house he says "Hey, we should go skydiving." I said "We could die." He said "We are all just a second away from death." John lived every second of his life to the fullest. He had no fear. And if you were his friend he would always lookout for you.
