Stepdaughter: Tamara Price and her husband Steven Ehrlich and their three children, Juniper, Jasper, and, Jett

Sister: Patricia Wyffels and her husband Robert "Bob" Wyffels and their two children, Anna Graf, her husband and son Henry Wyffels and his wife

Shirley grew up in Metzger, Oregon on a small farm with many animals, an orchard, and gardens. She loved riding her favorite cow Buttons down to the small store to buy candy. Shirley was also nicknamed Buttons since her older sister said she was cute as a button when she was brought home from the hospital.

She started working at KFC when she was in high school and continued working there while going to community college, she earned a diamond pennant for her dedicated work there. She also worked in the dermatology field for many years before changing careers to work at PGE in the mid-90s as a meter reader, after many moves throughout the company she retired at the age of 66 as a material buyer for substation construction.

She loved the beach, crabbing, fishing, camping, and spending time with family.
